NATIONAL MEMORIAL TO KITCHENER.

MOVING TRIBUTES IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

That this House resolve itself into a Committee to consider a memorial addressed to His Majesty, praying that His Majesty will give directions that a monument be erected, at the public charge, to the memory of the late Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, with an inscription expressing the admiration of this House for his illustrious career and its gratitude for his devoted services to the State.

In moving the above resolution in the House of Commons, on June 21st, Mr. Asquith paid a moving tribute to the great services rendered to the State in many fields of action by Lord Kitchener. The Premier said:

When the House adjourned for the Whit Monday recess Lord Kitchener had just received a strong and unmistakable expression of its confidence, and the next day he met in private conference a large number of its members, including some of his most persistent and, as it then seemed, irreconcilable critics, with the result that he and they parted on terms not only of mutual respect but of complete understanding.

I am glad to remember that at our last interview he expressed his pleasure at what had happened and his hope that this was the first step in a relationship of growing confidence and sympathy. When he said farewell, after nearly two years of daily intercourse which had gone on through all the strain and stress of the war, there was no thought on either side of more than a temporary parting, no foreboding of a separation that neither time nor space can bridge. Providence, in its wisdom, was preparing for him a sudden release of his burden of care and toil.

A DOMINANT PERSONALITY.

We who for the moment remain, those of us in particular who shared, as I did, his counsels in the greatest emergency of our time with ever-growing intimacy and fullness, can only bow our heads before the Supreme Will in whom are the issues of life and death.

Lord Kitchener, in whatever environment of circumstances or condition he might have been placed, would have been, as he was always and everywhere, a great and a dominant personality. He was tried in many different ordeals, and he always survived and conquered the test.

He began his career in the Royal Engineers, without any advantage of birth or of favour. I remember well, about a year ago, when we were talking one day of the importance of promoting young officers who had distinguished themselves in the war, that he told me that twelve years ago he had remained a subaltern in that fine and illustrious corps.

He never chafed or fretted after the fashion of smaller men. The hour came to him as it comes to all who have discernment, faculty and will. From that moment his future was assured. His name is inseparably associated with that of Lord Cromer in one of the greatest achievements of our race and time—the emancipation of Egypt. (Cheers.) To his genius we owe the conquest of the Sudan, and to his organising initiative the process which has ever since gone on of substituting over a vast and to a large extent devastated area civilisation for barbarism, justice for caprice and cruelty, a humane and equitable rule for a devastating and sterilising tyranny.

THE SERVANT OF DUTY.

From Egypt he was called in a great Imperial emergency to South Africa, where in due time he brought hostilities to a close and helped to lay the foundations of that great and rapidly consolidating fabric which has welded alienated races and given us in the great conflict of to-day a unique example of the service which local autonomy can render to Imperial strength. The next stage of his life was given to India, where he reconstituted and reorganised our army, police and British.

Raunted to Egypt, he was displaying the same gifts in civil administration which he had already illustrated in the military sphere, when, at the outbreak of war, he obeyed with the alacrity of a man who had become the willing servant of duty the summons to direct and to regenerate our Imperial forces in the supreme crisis of our national history.

He brought to his new task the same steely energy, the same rare resourcefulness, the same masterful personality, which never failed him in any of the fields of action in which he was during 50 years called upon, on behalf of his country to play his part.

His career has been cut short while still in the full tide of unexhausted powers and possibilities. No one is less fitted than I feel myself at this moment to be to make an analysis of his qualities or an appraisement of his services to the State. I would only say this—I cannot say more—that few men that I have known had less reason to shrink from submitting their lives to the pure eyes and the perfect vision of all-judging God. (Cheers.)

MR. DONALD LAW.

Mr. DONALD LAW said—
I desire in a very few words to second the resolution which has just been moved in terms so eloquent and touching by the Prime Minister. Lord Kitchener—since a great place, not only in the minds of his countrymen, but of the world. At the close of the conference which I attended, the other day at Paris the President paid a glowing tribute, amidst the hush of heartfelt sympathy of the representatives of all our Allies to the memory of the great soldier whose death he deplored as a loss no more to England than to the Allies as a whole. Lord Kitchener's strength, like that of most, perhaps of all, men of action, lay not so much in any mental process of logical reasoning which carried him to his decision, as in that instinct which is so often deeper and truer than our thoughts.

It was that sure instinct which, at the outbreak of war warned him of the nature of the terrible struggle in which we were involved. It was that instinct which induced him at the beginning to set about the formation of armies on a scale such as we had never dreamed of, and at a time when as I believe, no statesman of any party would have formed a conception, so gigantic and yet, as events have shown, so necessary.

That Army, existing to-day, to play a great part, as we hope and believe, perhaps a decisive part in securing that victory upon which the future of our race and, as we believe, the well-being of the world, depends. That Army exists as a testimony to the strength and determination of our country, but it exists also as a noble and enduring monument to the memory of that man who conceived it.

Lord Kitchener's death was indeed tragic, and if we consider the circumstances of it, there are few of us, I think, who would not say, "May my end be like his." He died after nearly two years of war—in the conduct of which he played a great part—a war in which there were no striking victories, and yet the fruits are still to be gathered—yet he enjoyed, as this House knows, in the fullest degree the confidence of his countrymen. He died, as the Prime Minister has said, in the full tide of his potentialities and possibilities. He died when his eye was not dimmed or his natural force abated after an arduous life, in which he served his country in every quarter of the globe.

He has fallen when the tide of battle still rolls on, and it is for us who remain to close our ranks with a single eye to securing that victory, the ultimate attainment of which he never doubted. (Cheers.)

CONFIDENCE OF THE WORKERS.

Mr. WIDLER (Chairman of the Labour party) said: The working men of the country had a sure instinct for seeing and recognising worth when it was evident, and he believed there was no man in

HONGKONG TIDES.

The tide-table given below has been compiled at the National Altimeter Office in London from the result of the analysis of observations taken by means of an automatic tide-recording machine in the Water Police Basin at Tsim Sha Tsui during the years 1887-90.

The zero of the table corresponds with the zero of the sounding in the Admiralty Chart, which has been found to be 4 feet 3 inches below mean sea level.

To obtain the depth of water on the tide gauge at the Victoria Naval Yard add 3 feet 4 inches, and on the gauge at Lamouet Dock, Aberdeen add 10 feet 6 inches to the height given in the table.

August 6th to 13th, 1916.
